From Our Readers

Retired history professor Edward C. Blackorby has received several letters regarding his article, "Usher L. Burdick's Early Political Career in North Dakota and the Rise of the Nonpartisan League" (published in North Dakota History, vol. 67, no. 3), and his forthcoming book-length biography of Burdick.

Ted Pedeliski, recently retired professor of political science, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, wrote:

> What a pleasant surprise the other day when I opened up the most recent issue of North Dakota History and saw your article on Usher Burdick's early political career. I knew you had been working on Burdick for a good many years and I was so pleased to find out that you have completed the project and that it will soon see full publication. . . . Working on politics of that era is truly a labor of love.

Albert Melbourne ("Mel") Christopher, Potomac, Maryland, wrote:

> Congratulations on your superb, scholarly article on Usher L. Burdick. I was uplifted by your article . . . and look forward to your new book.

Louis G. Geiger, a mentor to Dr. Blackorby when he began his Ph.D. studies at the University of North Dakota, wrote:

> About a week ago I finished reading your fine article on Usher Burdick. You can look upon that as a capstone to a fine academic career.

Eugene A. Burdick, the younger son of Usher Burdick, had contributed a great deal to Dr. Blackorby's research by providing him with papers, frequent interviews, and photographs. In a letter written to the editor about a year before his death, Judge Burdick noted:

> Professor Blackorby has really done a monumental job in research and writing this very historical account of my father and his influence on politics in North Dakota. We are all grateful that Professor Blackorby lived to see the work completed, although some of my family did not.
